

Poetry inspired by John Blackwell's poem: 'Rhywun'

By Y5 Pupils, Ysgol Bryn Gwalia

As long as there is beauty at The Bailey,
As long as there is wind blowing at The Bailey,
As long as there are birds singing at The Bailey,
As long as there is joy at The Bailey,
We will be happy.

Theo, age 10 & Ollie, age 9

As long as tall grass grows,
As long as wild leaves blow,
As long as water flows,
I will always love The Bailey.

Hollie, age 10, and Maizie and Mia, both age 9

As long as metal hides deep in the earth,
As long as bright leaves delight the earth,
As long as we have water on our earth,
We will always love the Bailey Hill.

Morgan & Alfie, both age 9

As long as there are flowerbeds and meadows to play in,
As long as there are birds and bees to see and hear,
As long as Nature is at home on the Bailey,
I will be happy!

Lily, age 10 & Caitlin, age 10

As long as there are clouds in the sky,
As long as trees sway in the breeze,
As long as the memories stay in my heart,
There will be beauty on The Bailey.

The Emilys: Emily J & Emily L, both age 10

As long as there are hills,
As long as there is the park,
There will be joy: with the
Bright grass and green streams
And all the children will play!
Tilly, age 10 & Osian, age 9
